DO NOT MISS

Piazza Brescia as Jurassic Park

A bloody battle between ferocious Tyrannosaurs Rex. An exhibition space with perspectives on Segosaurus, Centrosaurus and Ankylosaurus. There's a real Jurassic Park in piazza Brescia! Thanks to the sand sculptures, the event organized by Jesolo tourism department, this year is focused on the theme "Sand Raptors". As it happened in other successful exhibitions on big and fierce prehistoric predators, Jesolo also dedicates its summer sand sculptures to the theme so loved by children. Piazza Brescia has thus transformed into a prehistoric forest, enriched by copies of prehistoric specimens of Jesolo Natural History Museum. The exhibition is open every day until 16 September.

A TASTE OF JESOLO

Bellini

Bellini is famous throughout the world as one of the best known Italian cocktails.

It was invented in 1948 by Giuseppe Cipriani, the head barman at Harry's Bar. Due to its pink colour, which reminded Cipriani of the colour of the toga of a saint in a painting by the painter Giovanni Bellini, he named the cocktail Bellini. Hence the drink became a seasonal speciality of Harry's Bar in Venice, one of the favourite bars of Ernest Hemingway, Sinclair Lewis and Orson Welles. Later it was introduced on the list of cocktails at Harry's Bar in New York, becoming an evergreen.

The basic ingredients of the cocktail are: sparkling white wine (usually prosecco), blended flesh and juice of white peaches.
