Curiosities about gondola, the typical boat of Venice

The gondola is composed of 280 different pieces and is 11 meters long. It has an asymmetric shape with the left side wider than the right one to be kept it aligned and led by one to four rowers rowing in the Venetian way. That is standing and facing the boat's bow to maneuver the long oar standing on a special support called fórcola. The typical iron in the bow is called "dolfin" instead and useful to weigh down the front part of the boat keeping it on course. Its shape has a precise meaning, it contains the history of the City of Venice and the lagoon.

JESOLAN FLAVORS

Schie

They are grey shrimps typical of Venice lagoon and the Po Delta, not very meaty and considered poor food as they are cheap and easy to find. Schie area very easy dish to prepare – they just need boiling for about 10 minutes, seasoning with extra virgin olive oil, garlic, salt and parsley and serving with the ubiquitous creamy polenta. Photo Credits: www.piccolericette.net

JESOLO AND AROUND

Charm and Art Nouveau atmosphere

The Venice Lido is one of the most well-known islands in the Venetian Lagoon, a fully-fledged watershed between the city and the open sea. With its low and sandy coast, the Lido stretches for about 11 kilometres and attracts tourists with its slow pace and delightful architecture. Seamlessly connected to the centre of Venice by traditional steamboats, the Lido is the only island in the Lagoon that can be explored by road. Most visitors, however, prefer to explore the island by bicycle. This way you can easily move between the Lido and Malamocco, a colourful fishing village, and Alberoni, a port mouth, characterised by high sand dunes, which is nestled in a haven protected by the WWF. For those visiting the Lido, definitely not to be missed are the Abbey of St. Nicholas, which dates back to the 10th century and is the resting place of a part of the remains of the patron saint of sailors, the impressive Liberty architecture of the early 20th century hotels overlooking the Marconi waterfront, and the nearby reserve of Cà Roman, a paradise for birdwatchers.
